

NARRATIVE, AND AN ACCOMPT, Concerning the HOSPITAL
ON Oxmontown-Green, DUBLIN.
Containing

The Sums of Money, (and by whom) Given , and Subscribed, towards Building thereof, what hath been Received, and what yet Remains uncollected; Also a particular of the several Payments and Disbursements made for Materials and Workmanship, from the first beginning of the same , until the first of May, 1673. Together with the hopeful beginnings of Gifts towards future Annual Maintenance.

Published for the Satisfaction, and Incouragement, of all; But especially of them whose hearts God hath stirred up, and shall hereafter enlarge, towards that Pious Work.

Dublin, Printed by Benjamin Tooke, Printer to the Kings Most Excellent Majesty, 1673.

T hath ever been observed that, in great and, Populous places, the two different Extreame of Opulency and Penury do usually meet ; some injoying abundance to superfluity , while others labour under want, to excess of misery. That Statue which Nebuchadnezzar saw in his dream might very fitly represent not only Monarchies, but Cities ; wherein the upper parts are of Silver and Gold , but the feet of miry clay and iron. And as, where the richest and most precious Mines are found ; there, the ground about them is most Barren and Hungry ; So it is commonly seen that in those very places where the veins of Wealth are opened , and pour their Stores into some mens bosomes , there likewise want and Poverty do most imperiously reign over a great part of the neighbourhood.

Which diversity of mens conditions as it may be rationally ascribed to several causes, both natural, and moral ; so especially to the wisdom of Divine Providence , which brings both the Rich and the Poor to meet together, that both might be mutually benefitted : the Poor supplied by the rich mans wealth, and the Rich helpt by the services and Prayers of the Poor. And happy is that City where this inequality of estate, is thus equally and piously managed; where private, or especially publick, Charity relieves the Aged and Helpless Poor; and the necessary Charity of severe laws, and a due execution of them, keeps others from being Criminally Poor.

The want of a strict care, and regulation herein, hath filled many great Cities with troublesom swarms of idle Vagrants; whose impudent and Importune clamours, are assaults rather than requests, and tend not more to the molestation, than to the shame and reproach, of the Inhabitants. For whilest, either a Foolish and harmful commiseration, or a supine neglect of this concern, hath in effect exaundered the Laws made against them; this sort of People hath been (as the Historian speaks of the Astrologers in Rome) always forbidden, yet still retained.

It is not our purpose to make reflections upon others, nor yet to excuse our selves, by pleading that this evil is general. Possibly our own City is more infested than any other. We would willingly sweep our own streets from that Canaille of Loose and Sturdy vagabonds whose tongues cry much Louder than their wants. It hath doubtless been observed not only by our selves, but by others who have resorted hither, how in every corner they way-lay and invade mens Charity.

Hereupon have insued two Grand mischiefs,

The one, that the Charity of well disposed Persons sons is hereby drain'd away from the proper Objects of it, whose real wants are usually accompanied with Humility and Modesty; and, by an inevitable mistake, the greatest share of it Drops into the hands of a Rout of Leud Wretches, who afterwards Laugh at that pity which their Tones and Cantings have moved.

The other, That Charity being thus frequently misplac'd, hath at length grown weary of its mistakes; And not well knowing how to distinguish between those to whom bounty, and to whom Correction, would be proper Almes, hath utterly hardened it self against all those shapes and Semblances of Misery, which have so often abused it.

In the year 1668 the Right Honourable the Earl of Ossory (being then Lord Deputy of this Kingdom) and the Lords of His Majesties most Honourable Privy Council, taking into their serious Consideration the great inconveniencies caused by such dissolute People, were pleased, out of their pious and prudent care for the welfare of this City, to direct a Letter to the Lord Mayor, requiring a speedy and effectual redress of these disorders.

It is with all thankfulness acknowledged that this Letter was it which laid the first Stone in this great and good design; and ever adored be the gracious Providence of God, that mov'd our Governours to this pious care, and the City to follow the intimations of their, and the Divine, pleasure.

This Letter, being of such Publick concern, was, with the first opportunity, communicated by the then Lord Mayor to the Common Council of the City; who unanimously resolved to endeavour that full satisfaction, and due obedience might be given to the whole contents of it. Whereupon they Streight proceeded to issue out Orders against all vagrant and dissolute beggers, and executed them upon as many of that note as could be apprehended.

But this course not altogether obtaining its desired effect, partly by reason of the Huge numbers of Indigent persons; and partly because of the great difficulty of Discerning between the Impotent and the Impudent; (the pretences of the Later being as plausible, and their complaints as passionate, as the other) lest therefore too much Lenity should be exercised towards those whose idleness deserved rigour, or too much rigour towards those whose wants required Pity and relief; it was judged the most rational and expedient method, by a particular and exact inquiry, to select out such as were fit objects for Charity, that these being seperated from the rest, Magistrates might Strictly execute the Laws, without being accounted either unjust, or uncharitable.

In pursuance hereof, it was by the free and general vote of all the said Assembly enacted, that an Hospital should forthwith be endeavoured to be founded on Oxmantown green, one of the most pleasant, convenient, and health.

healthful places belonging unto this City: and that it should be built large enough for the reception, and indowed liberally enough for the Maintenance of as many Poor, as should be thought worthy to be entertained on the publick Charity.

And that there might be no delays in a work of so great necessity and importance, Treasurers, or Trustees, were then appointed, to whose care the Management of this affair was committed; and who were requested and impowr'd to receive the charitable contributions of all persons whose hearts God should incline to the promoting so good a work, and to expend what was so received, as should be judged most behoveful for the ends above mentioned.

According to the Resolution thus taken and declared; on the eighth day of May in the year of our Lord 1669, this work was begun, though its beginners were much better furnished with alacrity and willingness, than with ability and means, to go through with so great an undertaking.

But yet that they may not be branded with the imputation of folly in beginning to build, and not having wherewithal to finish it, their Apology is, that they did confidently believe (what the event hath in a good measure verified) that they had a large and rich Stock lying in the hands of many Charitable Persons in this Kingdom, part of which hath been already received, and imployed (as at the end of this Narrative will appear) and they do with the same humble Confidence expect those greater Supplies, b which

which yet are wanting, beseeching the great and universal Benefactor, that he would be pleased to excite a Pious emulation in mens hearts, and make them contend in this good work, whose name shall be most blessed on earth, and whose reward most glorious in Heaven.

And this hope is the more increased by observing how God hath hitherto Signally owned and favoured that Good intention, and by bringing in seasonable Supplies, when the were most needed, and least expected, hath given just cause to intitle him to the work; and with all humble praise to acknowledg, that he himself is the founder and builder of this house, designed for the support and maintenance of his own family.

And as a special remark of the Divine approbation, it must here likewise with all thankfullness be observed that although the Stock were alwayes vastly disproportionable to the greatness of the undertaking and hath oftentimes been exhausted to the last mite that it could yield, and no means appeared how more might be procured either to furnish materials for the building, or payment for the workman for his just and agreed hire; Yet the Divine Providence hath sent in frequent Supplies, the Charity of Some beginning, where others left, and upon faileur it was Furthered by the forbearance of persons concerned for work and materials who were confident so good a design could not want favourites till stone by stone this great work was at length-brought to that perfection wherein now it is.

The

The Fabrick consists of three Isles, or rows of building meeting in one Front. In the whole it contains very many apartments; the greatest number of which are designed for Lodgings, and may without annoyance or incumbrance receive 250, or 300, persons, the rest is taken up in necessary Offices for the accommodation of such as shall be admitted besides the Common Hall, Large and Spacious, wherein they are all, with modesty and thanksgiving, to take their allowed repast; and a fair decent Chappel where in they are all daily to meet at their Stated houres, to worship God, and to celebrate his praise; whose bounty hath rescued them from the Dregs of misery, and put them into a condition, though, not Splendid and redundant, yet, both sedate and sufficing.

There are also four large Schoo'-Rooms erected in several parts of the Edifice, for the Instruction of those Children and Youths that shall be entertained, in several sorts of Learning according to their Genius and Capacity. viz. One for the perfect Reading of English; another for Writing, and Arithmetick; a third for the Latine and Greek tongues; and the fourth for the Mathematicks; in the knowledg of which such youths are to be instructed as shall be found capable, so far forth as shall be needfull for their perfect skill in Navigation or any other ingenious and usefull art.

And that Provision might be made, not only for necessity, but, somewhat also for Convenience, and moderate delight;

The whole structure, and a good Scope of ground about it, are inclosed with a larg wall; designed for Gardens and walks for the Solace and refreshment of the Elder, and for the Recreation and exercise of the Younger.

This work being begun upon such motives, carried on in such manner, and brought to such perfection, as has been mentioned, wanted yet the Royal assent and Confirmation: But knowing his Majesties ready inclinations to works of Piety and Mercy, the City was well assured that their humble address would obtain a gracious acceptance and Concession. They therefore humbly Supplicated His Excellency the Lord Berkeley who was then Lord Lieutenant of this Kingdom that he would be Pleased to recommend their good intentions to His Majesty, and obtain for this foundation as full and ample a Charter, as in cases of the like nature had formerly been Granted: This their Petition was nor only favourably received; But his Excellency and several Lords of the Council, to whom it was by him Communicated, not thinking it sufficient for their Charity, to assist so good a work only by their interests and recommendations, were pleased to contribute towards this foundation.

As soon as a business of this consequence could be dispatched, the Charter was obtained, wherein His Majesty is graciously pleased to give many singular Testimonies of His Royal approbation; and a full and free ratification of all those Priviledges they had humbly sued for. And al-

although this structure be no way worthy of so high a cognizance, yet His Majesty respecting rather the Piety of their intentions, than the Grandeur of the work it self, was graciously pleased, as an honourary addition to his Royal grant, to give a name to this issue of publick Charity; commanding it henceforth to be called The Hospital and Free-School of King CHARLES the Second DUBLIN, A name from which all good men, draw all good Omens: and may it ever flourish, and Triumph over time and chance.

And because it may prove expedient not only for the information, but also for the Encouragement, of the Pious Reader to further Contributions, to understand the true design of His Charity, and the security of its continuance as a lasting Monument that may recommend His Memory to future Ages; it is conceived convenient to subjoyn an Extract of the Charter it self, omitting the Circumlocutions of the Legal form, which might swel this Narrative to an unnecessary tediousness

“ His Majesty therefore has therein granted, to “ the Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons and Citizens of the “ City of Dublin, and their Successors for ever all that “ piece and parcel of ground in Oxmantown-Green near “ the said City, where the intended Hospital and School “ is already built, to be held of His Majesty, as of His “ Castle of Dublin, in free and Common Soccage, a
“ a mansion-house, and place of abode, for the Susten“ tation and relief of Poor Children, Aged, Maimed

“ and Impotent People, Inhabiting or residing in the said “ City of Dublin; And giving power to the said Mayor “ Sheriffs &c. And their Successors for ever, at their wills “ and Pleasures, to place therein such Master or Masters, “ and such numbers of Poor People and Children, and “ such Officers and Ministers of the said Hospital and “ Free-School, as likewise an able, learned, Pious and Or“ thodox Minister, to be approved of by the Arch-“ Bishop of Dublin for the time being, which Minister, “ is to read Divine Service, and Preach, to such as shall “ reside there, and Catechize such Children as shall “ be in the said Hospital or Free-School, as to the said “ Mayor &c. shall seem convenient. Who are also “ thereby impowered to remove such Master, Minister
“ &c. Or any other Officers belonging to the said “ Hospital, and to place others in their stead, and to ap“ point Fees and Salaries for all the aforementioned “ members of the Hospital and Free-School, as they and “ their Successors shall think fit; That the Mayor &c.
“ and their Successors be Governours of the said Hospital
“ and Free-School, and of the Lands and Tenements &c.
“ to the same belonging; That under this Title of the “ Governours of the Hospital and Free-School of “ King CHARLES the Second DUBLIN they be a Body “ Corporate and Capable of Suing or being Sued in any “ of His Majesties Courts, and of purchasing to the “ Yearly Value of 6000 l. sterl. and of keeping a “ Seal

“ Seal &c. And they are hindred from Alienating a“ ny of the Estate of the said Hospital and Free-School
 “ to any other use than that of the Corporation now “ mentioned; and from making Leases for above 41
 “ Years of Houses or other buildings, or 21 of Lands “ Tenements &c. And that either in possession, or not “ above two Years before the Expiration of the Estate
 “ in possession, and without any fine or Income, at the best “ Yearly Rent that Bonâ Fide from good and Solvent “ Tenants may be had. Nor is any Lease to be made to “ any of the Governours, or any other Person to the use “ of, or in trust for any of them. They have also pow“ er given them of making Rules and Statutes, &c.
 “ For the Government of the Hospital and Free-School,
 “ and to Execute or Abrogate such Rules as they find “ occasion, Provided they be not contrary to the Laws
 “ in force, or the Royal Authority.

And Now that this true and faithfull Narrative of the Progress of this good work has been given, it has been thought needfull here to Subjoyn a perfect Catalogue of those Benefactors whom God hath stirred up to Contribute to it; together with a just Accompt of every particular Summe received and disbursd; which it is hoped will not be expounded as performed with a design of bringing mens Charity into a Comparifon; which were both Odious, and disingenuous: but partly to declare to all the World the Faithfulness and Integrity of the management of this great trust; and partly also that the Prudent and Charitable Reader may be able to Estimate how much is yet wanting to the competent Furniture and indowment of this Foundation, and by the Examples of so many worthy Persons, may be excited to Register his name among them, and to receive his reward with them, when God (who hath pass't his word for their Security) shall repay this Loan with abundant interest and advantage.

It is hoped that this true and plain Narrative here given; will so far both satisfy and excite all those that are piously inclined, as to supersede the necessity of using any long and elaborate motives. For none can have so ill an opinion either of the work, or of the Reader, as to bring either into Suspicion, by plying them with such Artificial arguments and insinuations, as might perhaps persuade more unwilling persons, to a less useful work. They are not now persuaded to Erect Pyramids, or Mausolæums, or any such Ostentatious vanities of Impotent Ambition, and Superfluous Wealth. And yet if the thirst of Glory, and the Fond desire of an empty name, could prevail with others to lavish out the Treasures of whole Provinces and Kingdoms on such prodigious piles as served for no other use, but only to make men Gaze at the structures, and talk of the Founders; certainly then somewhat may be allowed for the publick credit of a Metropolis: especially when what is design'd is not for shew but use; and all the Glory of this performance is of doing that which may be serviceable to the Common good.

But indeed Houses of this nature are so frequent in most of the considerable places of our neighbour nations, that we cannot hope for any singular Credit to our City by Erecting this, but only to wipe away that blot and infamy that hath been cast upon us for having none. For in the Printed memoirs of some Forreigners, whom either business, or curiosity brought to visit these parts, we have been openly upbraided to the whole World, that though we had several Churches yet we had not one Hospital. They noted it for a strange unwonted thing, that in the chief City of a Kingdom, there should not be made some Publick Provision for the Poor, which the Policy and interest of other Places always accounted one of the first and greatest cares. We confess the Observation was very sharply made; & doubt it designed not only to cast a slur upon our City, but upon our profession, as if our Religion were devoid of Charity, and our Faith of Good works.

But whatsoever shame may light upon this City, or Kingdom by so long a delay of so good a work, yet we think our selves bound in Zeal and Conscience to vindicate our Religion from so foul a Calumny. For although we disclaim and renounce the merit, yet we all avow the necessity, of good workes. Though we pretend not to purchase Mansions in Heaven, by building Hospitals on Earth; yet we own it our indispensable duty to make such Friends of the Mammon of unrighteousness, that, when we fail, we may be received into those everlasting habitations

This House is not intended to be an Hive for Drones, but a profitable Nursery for the Common-Wealth, to breed up youth in vertue and knowledg till they shall be of sufficient growth to be transplanted; Some to honest Trade and occupations; and some that are more remarkably pregnant, to the University. It is not unknown what singular advantages other Cities have reap'd by this wise management of their Charity. For by this course they have many times raked Jewels out of rubbish, and taken Persons off the Dunghill who have afterwards approved themselves fit to sit among Princes. Instances are not rare to be given of those who now wear the badg of Honour and Authority, that have formerly worn the badg of Publick Charity; and are very worthy and beneficial members of those places, of which they were once the Eleemosynaries. However, it is very seldom seen that those who have been educated in such foundations, and disposed of according to the prudence of their Governours, do utterly miscarry; but at least they attain unto such a Condition wherein they may Subsist comfortably, and be reputed honest and serviceable Citizens.

As for Aged Persons (although we profess that we are somewhat loth to have this our Nursery incombred with to many Old Trees, yet) so many of them as shall be Judged meet objects of Charity, and in any degree fit for the service of the House, especially if recommended by any bountiful Benefactor, we shall willingly receive. Still declaring that the intention of this work, is not only for a personal relief, but for the Common and Publick good; to the Promoting of which we think the Support and education of the younger sort most conducive.

And we finally declare, that in proportion to the summe which it shall please any Benefactor to contribute, so we shall endeavour that he, and his descendents for ever, shall power to Nominate, and present to the Governours at the time being, one or more Poor Children, which shall be found capable according to the Rules of this Regulation, shall in no wise be refused, but immediately received in to enjoy their share of the Common Charity.

This we think but a just Acknowledgment of their bounty.
And for ascertaining them hereof, we expect shortly that some Orders and statutes shall be established for the better regulating of this House, wherein this shall be enjoyned to be inviolably observed.

And now the great and good God prosper this work according to the sincerity and uprightness of our intentions, and so open the hearts and hands of those, towards whom his bounty, should be an inforcing argument for theirs;
that this work, which hath been happily begun by his mercy, may be happily finisht and perfected to His Glory.
